As we celebrate 30 years of Kids Helpline this year, it's time to reflect on just how special the service is, and just what 8.4 million responses has meant to three decades of children and young people.

Kids Helpline is about community, a demonstration of what is possible when people care. People like you, and indeed Governments, corporates and schools, have been providing the funding and awareness of the service to children and young people since 1991.

Young people speak of their gratitude for the care they receive. Care that has and remains lifesaving and life-changing. As one mother has shared, "We owe the counsellors everything. It's many years ago, but it's still... still very emotional. We will never be able to repay them for saving our daughter's life."

Every day I am proud to be part of this wonderful organisation and I hope you are too. Good luck in the draw!
